Lemonbrand

AI IN CONTEXT · EPISODE 04 · OCTOBER 29, 2026

Agents are amazing at bureaucracy.

Bureaucracy is documents plus rules. It repeats, it follows rules, it can be checked: exactly what agents are good at. You need to get them and give them the tools so they can do the bureaucracy.

01 · THE DOCUMENTS THAT RUN A BUSINESS

Six kinds, and why an agent is good at each.

Sell

Proposals, one-pagers, case studies

Same shape every time, filled from your real call notes and past work.

Agree

NDAs, contracts, terms

Fixed wording with a few blanks. The agent fills the blanks and never touches a clause.

Report

Monthly reports, recaps

Pulls the numbers and traces each one to its source, on time every month.

Teach

Playbooks, SOPs, checklists

Turns how your best person works into steps anyone can follow.

Decide

Briefs, memos, plans

Puts what is known on one page, with the sources, so you can decide fast.

Remember

Notes, logs, ledgers

Writes down what happened, every single time, and never gets bored of it.

Five parts. You only build them once.

Skills	The recipe for one kind of document: what goes in, the shape, the checks.
Rules	What is always true: real sources, your voice, no invented numbers, nothing private.
Workflows	The order things happen in, the checks between steps, and who approves.
Library	Your brand and assets, approved once and reused forever.
You	The judgment. Agents draft, you approve every send.

THE PRINCIPLE

Every recurring document becomes a skill.

If you asked for it twice, write the recipe down. The third one costs you a sentence.

03 · MAKE YOUR OWN ASSETS

Stock looks like everyone. Yours looks like you, and it compounds.

Every object you approve makes the next document, post and page faster. The agent pulls from your shelf, so nothing looks borrowed.

1. Brand system
   Colors, type, one style for objects.
2. Generate
   One object, a full scene, or a family for a framework.
3. Approve into the library
   The gate. Nothing unapproved ships.
4. Reuse by name
   Every doc, post and page pulls from it.
5. Animate the best
   A few seconds of motion for video.

Simon's own tools for this are agent skills: one makes a single object, one a full scene, one a matching family for every step of a method, one animates them, a library that holds only what was approved, and a studio that builds posts and covers from it. A plugin, Make brand assets for me, walks you through the same steps. Simon shares the skill files after the session.

Right first, then designed.

Same order every time. Each step has the line to type into Claude.

0

The brand card, once

Colors, two fonts, your logo, three lines of how you sound. Reused on every document.

```
"Here are my colors, fonts and logo. Save this as my brand card."
```

1

The real source

Call notes, the spreadsheet, the old version. Never start from a blank prompt.

```
"Here are my call notes and last month's numbers."
```

2

Reader, job, shape, what stays out

One line each. If you cannot write them, the document is not ready.

```
"Reader: a client's office manager. Job: approve the 3 fixes. Shape: one page.
Leave out names and amounts."
```

3

Words first, then cut half

Plain text before any design. The title says the finding, not the topic.

```
"Write it as plain text first. Title says the finding. Then cut it in half."
```

4

One question per chart

The question is the title, the answer sits under it. One accent color.

```
"One chart per question. Question as the title, answer under it."
```

5

The design pass

Brand card in. One accent, only on what matters. White space. Nothing split across a page edge.

```
"Now build it as a page with my brand card. One accent, only on the number that matters."
```

6

Export

A PDF that matches the screen, edge to edge.

```
"Export it as a PDF that matches the page exactly."
```

7

Check every page, then send

Look at every page and the phone width. Every number traced to its source. Nothing private left in.

```
"List every number on the page and where it came from."
```

What it looks like.

Before: the plain draft

```
Running the audit call

For partners who walk a client through their inbox map and into the 90-day program, without Lemonbrand on the line. The lines in quotes come from real calls between September and October 2026, trimmed for reading. Client names and client figures are left out on purpose.

The spine

Measure first. Their own numbers. A gut check. They pick a job. You say what stays human. "That sounds like the first build." Then the 90 days, the price once, and one next step with a date.

There are two shapes. A readout: they connected, their map exists, the team is in the room (45 minutes).
A sample first call: they have not connected yet, you walk the sample map or run the 10-minute call map
live, and the close is "connect your own inbox". The steps are the same.

The day before (15 minutes)

- Read the map yourself. Pick three facts that will surprise them and two jobs you think they will pick.
- Check every name and role in the map against the invite list.
- Test audio and screen share with their host. Bad audio has cost us eight minutes on two calls.
- Send one line: what the call is for and who should be there. People who arrive not knowing why they are there take ten minutes to warm up.

Minute by minute

0 to 3. Open. You host. Introduce everyone, set the order, and anyone leaving early goes first. Keep your own intro under two minutes: the calls that ran a long vision speech before the first number lost the room.

3 to 6. Why measure first.
- "When you ask someone what's the problem, they're gonna tell you what's happened over the last 2, 3 weeks."
- "I need some form of a baseline to measure against... What is it giving to me?"
- "The inbox audit has one purpose: where do I begin?"

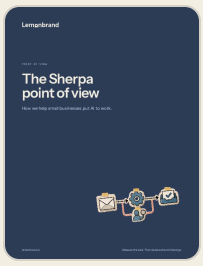

Say the privacy line now, before anyone asks: read-only, nothing is sent or changed, access can be revoked any time. For anything deeper, send the security whitepaper.

6 to 10. Their year in four numbers, then the gut check.
- "This is your year in four numbers."
```

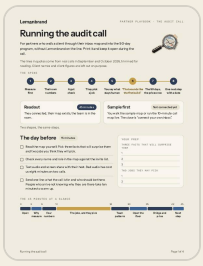

After: the finished page

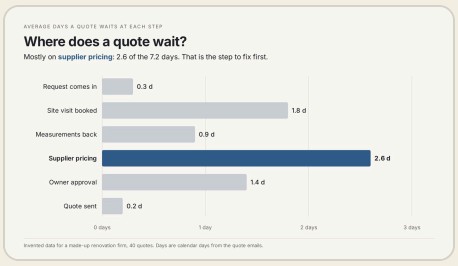

The same playbook: the plain draft, then the finished page.

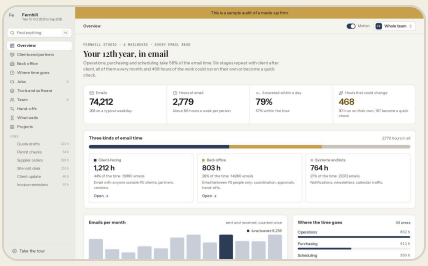

A point of view

A playbook

One question per chart

A sample audit report

Every example is ours. The sample report and the chart use a made-up firm; no client names or numbers appear.

Lemonbrand

Simon helps teams put agents to work: an audit of how the team works, then the agents that run on it.

NEXT EPISODE

lemonbrand.io/live